FROM THE VICE CHANCELLOR'S DESK

Dear Recruiters,

The last few decades have brought about a revolutionary change to the concept of law schools. Today we stand in a position where the idea of law schools has shifted from that of a docked ship, to one sailing at full mast. The way law is taught and more importantly which law is taught has now become a fluid concept.

The Batch of 2020 of Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, Punjab (“RGNUL”) is one which has left me enthralled with their holistic and impressive skill-set not only in academics, but extra-curriculars such as moot court competitions, academic research, and through internships at various reputed organizations.

Over the past four years, my interactions with the Batch have left me impressed and thoroughly content. This Batch’s dynamism and proactiveness have not only honed their own legal skills but have contributed to the growth of their alma mater by securing laurels at various national and international events.

Amongst their numerous achievements, I feel particularly proud that the Batch has been associated with RGNUL’s first international moot win and being aware of their social responsibility as lawyers has actively involved itself in social endeavors – in roles ranging from being a part of NGOs, establishing and running their own NGOs, to assisting various statutory bodies and being student researchers for various public interest litigations having a nationwide impact.

This Batch has been solution oriented right from the inception of their law school journey which is why all the above achievements come to me as no surprise.

I take this opportunity to extend a very warm welcome to see, feel and interact with the RGNUL family and assess the competence of our students for yourself. Whilst doing so, I wish to convey to the recruiters not to consider our students as potential employees but as secured future investments. The Batch of 2020 has provided legal education the respect it deserves and my blessings shall forever be with them.

Warm regards,

Prof. (Dr.) Paramjit S. Jaswal
Vice-Chancellor
