

RESEARCH OUTCOME DISSEMINATION SERIES

INSPIRING LEGAL RESEARCH:

Legal research in India is gradually improving. Some high-quality research work is being done in Law and allied fields in India. However, these researches are not getting a suitable platform to reach its target audience. As a result of this, the beneficiaries of this research remain unaware and at a loss. In order to address this situation, RGNUL has launched an initiative to showcase significant research in the field of law and related subjects through the Research Outcome Dissemination Series (RODS).

SHOWCASE YOUR RESEARCH:

RODS is envisaged to be a measure to showcase and highlights quality legal and interdisciplinary research. RODS is open to collaborations and partnerships with governmental departments, academic institutions, non-profit organizations, national and international think tanks, etc. RGNUL intends to suitably recognize the contributions of the speakers as well as discussants.

INVITATION TO PARTICIPATE:

RGNUL invite individual research scholars, writers and professionals at any level of their careers and institutions like think tanks, research institutions, non-profit organizations etc. for the purpose. The series aims to focus upon the Empirical and Qualitative legal and socio-legal researches done by various agencies, Individuals, Research Scholars and other professionals.

STRUCTURE:

Every session of the series shall comprise of a one and half hour duration, where the initial half of the 45 minutes is reserved for faculty moderated discussion and the latter half for the open discussion on the Process, Methodology and Report of the research. Thus, every session of the series will provide a common platform not only for disseminating the outcome of the research but also to showcase the entire research process and research methodology, which will inspire the audience to engage in research and enrich their experience.
