

REPORT ON THE TWO-DAY INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON INTERNATIONAL HUMANITARIAN LAW

The Centre for Advanced Studies in International Humanitarian Law organised a Two-Day International Conference on International Humanitarian Law on 7th and 8th of August 2026, which sought to bring together academicians, researchers, scholars, and students to deliberate upon contemporary issues and developments in the field of International Humanitarian Law.

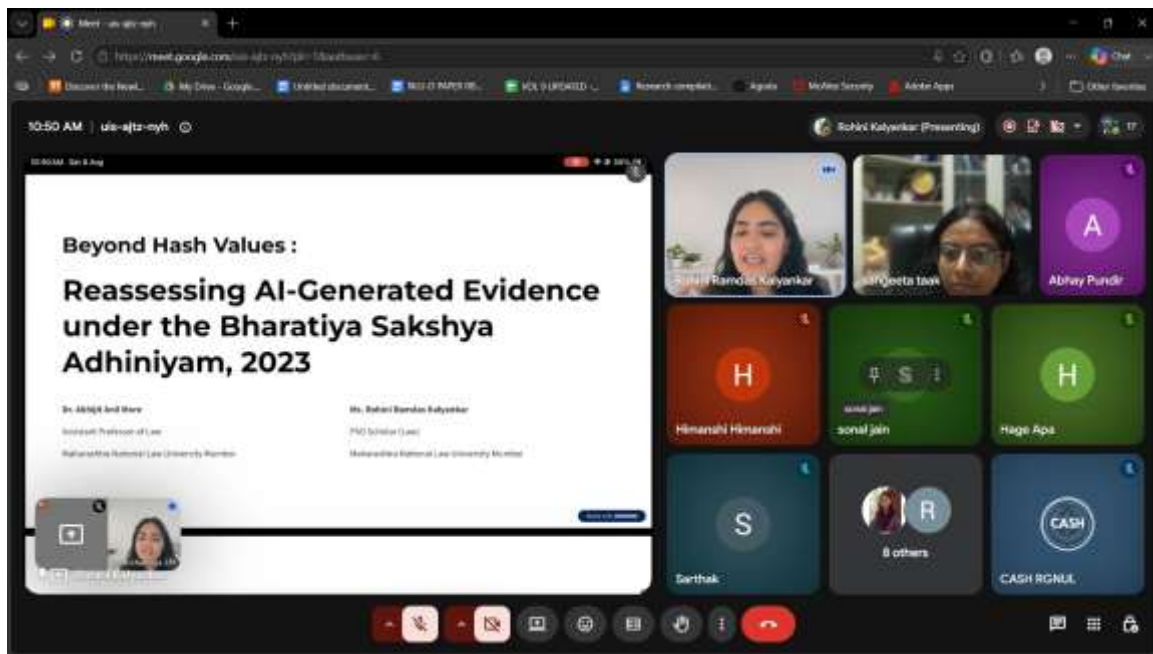

As part of the conference proceedings, the Paper Presentation Sessions were organised on 8th August 2026 in online mode. The sessions provided participants from diverse academic backgrounds with an opportunity to present their research works, exchange perspectives, and engage in meaningful academic discussions on various dimensions of International Humanitarian Law and related areas.

One out of the two paper presentation sessions conducted during the conference was chaired by Dr. Sangeeta Taak who is an Assistant Professor of Law at Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, Punjab and has expertise in areas including International Criminal Law, Human Rights, Refugee Law, and International Humanitarian Law, and has made significant contributions to legal research and academic scholarship.

The session proceeded as per the order of presentation circulated among the participants. Each presenter was allotted ten minutes to present their research paper, following which the Chairperson provided observations, feedback, and academic suggestions on the respective presentations. The session witnessed participation from students, research scholars, academicians, and other participants from diverse academic backgrounds.

The presentations covered various contemporary issues related to International Humanitarian Law, human rights, armed conflicts, humanitarian challenges, and emerging legal concerns. Dr. Sangeeta Taak carefully reviewed each presentation and provided constructive comments to help participants refine their research approaches and strengthen their academic work.

The session continued for approximately one hour and thirty minutes and facilitated an engaging exchange of ideas between the presenters and the Chairperson. At the conclusion of the session, Dr. Sangeeta Taak shared her concluding remarks, appreciated the efforts of the participants, and provided valuable guidance for further research and academic engagement in the field of International Humanitarian Law.

The Paper Presentation Session was successfully concluded with the Final remarks by Dr. Taak and the best presenter and best paper were left to be decided after marking and checking of the conference papers.
