- Seminars, Workshops, and Conferences: Organizing events on contemporary and significant issues of criminal law.

ABOUT CENTRE FOR ALTERNATIVE DISPUTE RESOLUTION (CADR)

The Centre for Alternative Dispute Resolution (CADR) has been established to promote students' and researchers' interest in Alternative Dispute Resolution constituting dispute resolution methods like Arbitration, Negotiation, Mediation and Conciliation. ADR mechanisms are slowly gaining momentum and are becoming a part of Indian justice delivery system. CADR endeavours to promote and develop ADR as a vehicle of socio-economic and political justice. The ultimate objective of the Centre is to strengthen ADR mechanism in the country by emerging as a platform for students to further their interests in the field. A strong team of teachers and students is working towards achieving this end.

The Center is dedicated to organizing the following activities:

- Advanced Study and Research: Exploring Emerging Areas of ADR.
- Professional Training: Offering training on Mediation
- Research Projects: conducting independent research projects and collaborating with professional organizations at national and international levels.
- Publications and Study Material: Producing publications and study materials on various aspects of ADR.
- Seminars, Workshops, and Conferences: Organizing events on contemporary and significant issues of ADR.

ABOUT THE CONFERENCE

The International Conference on Criminal Laws focuses on critically analyzing India's newly introduced Criminal Laws: Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita (BNS), Bharatiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita (BNSS), and Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam. These laws represent a departure from the colonial-era Indian Penal Code (IPC), emphasizing restorative justice and enhancing protections for women, children, and vulnerable groups. Discussions will explore the integration of modern technological advancements in legal procedures and evidence handling to streamline judicial processes and ensure fairness. Any illegal conduct or transgression is considered a crime against the State under criminal law, not the victim, and only the State has the authority to prosecute it. As alternative dispute resolution (ADR) is a conflict resolution process, it is limited to minor crimes such as marital disputes and motor vehicle charges because it is difficult to classify crimes as disputes. However, there are a lot of cases that are ongoing in Indian courts right now. Reducing the excessive workload of litigation on the courts is also imperative.

The conference's main goals is to expand the use of alternative dispute resolution in criminal trials and highlight how crucial it is in light of recent changes to the law. Furthermore, the Conference shall explore the Indian system of ADR, including its kinds, functions, and involvement in the criminal justice system. Additionally, a brief comparison of ADR in criminal justice across various nations will be covered.

OBJECTIVES OF THE CONFERENCE

- Analyze newly introduced laws: Evaluate the Bharatiya Nyaya Sanhita, Bhartiya Nagrik Suraksha Sanhita, and Bharatiya Sakshya Adhiniyam.
- Compare with colonial era laws: Highlight differences from the Indian Penal Code of 1860 and other colonial-era criminal laws.
- Highlight transformative changes: Discuss how these new laws aim to decolonize the Indian legal system and shift towards restorative justice.
- Focus on vulnerable groups: Examine specific provisions that enhance protection for women, children, and other vulnerable groups.
- Incorporation of technology: Assess the integration of modern technological advancements in legal procedures and evidence handling.
- To expand the use of alternative dispute resolution in criminal trials and highlight how crucial it is in light of recent changes to the Criminal law
- Promote justice over punishment: Discuss the emphasis on justice and rehabilitation rather than mere punishment, including community service for minor offenses.
- Address organized crime and terrorism: Analyze the new definitions and stringent measures against organized crime and terrorism.
