1. INTRODUCTION OF THE EVENT

The One Week program is conceived as a reflective, capacity-building initiative aimed at re-examining traditional approaches to legal teaching and encouraging a transition to pedagogies that are socially responsive, context-sensitive, and learner-centric. As Indian legal education confronts complex contemporary challenges ranging from access to justice and legal pluralism to technological transformation and interdisciplinary demands, there is an increasing need for law teachers to move beyond purely doctrinal instruction and embrace socio-legal perspectives that connect law with lived realities. This FDP seeks to provide a collaborative platform for faculty members to engage in scholarly dialogue, share best practices, and explore innovative teaching methodologies that integrate doctrinal rigor with socio-legal awareness. Through expert sessions, interactive discussions, and experiential learning components, participants will be encouraged to critically reflect upon their teaching philosophies and redesign classroom practices that cultivate analytical thinking, ethical sensitivity, and social consciousness among law students. By bringing together academicians, researchers, and practitioners, the Programme aspires to strengthen pedagogical capacities and contribute to the broader project of transforming Indian legal education into a more inclusive, dynamic, and socially engaged enterprise.

2. OBJECTIVE OF THE EVENT

- a) To enhance the pedagogical competencies of legal educators by introducing innovative, learner-centric, and outcome-based teaching methodologies.
- b) To promote interdisciplinary and socio-legal approaches that integrate constitutional values, social realities, and contemporary issues into legal education.
- c) To equip participants with strategies to address emerging technological challenges, including Artificial Intelligence, academic integrity, and digital transformation in legal education.
- d) To provide a collaborative platform for academicians and researchers to exchange best practices, strengthen scholarly engagement, and contribute to the advancement of legal education in India.

13. FEEDBACK OF EVENT

The Faculty Development Programme received an overwhelmingly positive response from a distinguished cohort of participants comprising academicians, PhD scholars, and legal professionals drawn from reputed institutions across the country, including Manipal University Jaipur, National Law University and Judicial Academy Assam, Rajiv Gandhi National University of Law, HPNLU Shimla, and several other leading centres of legal education. Participants appreciated the well-structured sessions, the academic rigor of the topics covered, and the depth of expertise brought by the resource persons. PhD scholars found the sessions particularly valuable for sharpening their research orientation, while academicians and professionals valued the opportunity to engage with contemporary legal and pedagogical developments and to network with peers from diverse institutional backgrounds.

Feedback also underscored the professionalism of the organization, with participants commending the effective coordination, structured discussions, and meaningful opportunities for scholarly exchange and Q&A. Several participants suggested extending the duration of future FDPs and incorporating more research-oriented or workshop-style components to allow deeper engagement with specialized themes. Overall, the response affirms that the Programme successfully achieved its objective of enhancing academic and professional capacity, with participants expressing keen interest in attending future development programmes of a similar caliber.
